

Notice of Upcoming Public and Stakeholder Consultations Regional Governance Project: Update and Request for Public Input and Feedback

As residents have previously been notified, the Flagstaff Intermunicipal Partnership (FIP) – comprising the nine (9) Central Alberta communities of Alliance, Forestburg, Heisler, Loughheed, Daysland, Hardisty, Killam, Sedgewick, and Flagstaff County – has been undertaking some preliminary, exploratory analysis on the potential feasibility of forming a single-tier government within Flagstaff region.

Once again, this analysis and the discussions to date have been exploratory in nature only, and reflect FIP's ongoing due diligence efforts to identify opportunities or areas for more effective and efficient (regionalized) municipal service delivery across Flagstaff region.

Informing, Listening and Learning: The next stage in this process is to inform, engage and consult with the public and community stakeholders on these potential/possible 'Made in Flagstaff' regional governance structures...and, most importantly, to ensure that FIP continues to receive informed public/stakeholder input and feedback on the Regional Governance Project from across all participating member communities and constituencies.

This stage will be initiated in early November 2018 and will involve extensive community outreach and engagement. A Community Engagement website – MyFlagstaff.ca – has been set-up to help facilitate these consultations...and to ensure that residents and stakeholders have access to all the information they need to participate and help inform these exploratory Regionalization: Where to from here? discussions.

Please visit MyFlagstaff.ca for your copy of the Consultations Workbook and Questionnaire (to be posted on November 5, 2018), and to stay updated on the Townhall Meetings and Information Booths which will be set-up across the region over the next number of weeks.

If you would like to discuss the public and stakeholder consultations process further, or to provide your input, feedback or ideas, we'd love to hear from you! Please feel free to contact our Public/Stakeholder Consultations Facilitators (from New West Opportunities Inc.) directly, or by filling out the Online Information Request Form on the MyFlagstaff.ca website.
